

Line Maintenance Services

Lemacon are a dynamic lines contracting company, who specialise in the maintenance of your overhead and underground lines. Our recent severe polar blast saw many rural properties without power for too long. It's all too easy to be bumped into a queue and wait, but when the cows need milking and the baby needs feeding, you just can't afford to wait. Lemacon understand and care – going out of their way to help is just part of what they do. Their honesty, integrity and morals are of very high standard, yet their price is very competitive giving you more options within your dollar.

Their management, their contracts manager, linesmen and cable jointers, make for one very efficient and very effective team. "Think smart, think quick and think efficient" is their motto, and thinking this way, along with staff who care, ensures your personalised needs are met with satisfaction and complete understanding of you as a client.

Tony Potts, Contracting Manager for Lemacon will visit you for a free consultation on your property. Tony has been in this trade for 20 years and his experience and vast array of knowledge, allows for your own unique situation and needs to be met with top class expertise. He will assess your current infrastructure and check if the lines you have will withstand another fierce polar blast. After full inspection of your current situation, he can recommend the maintenance that may be required to sustain your current system, or he can help you with installing new lines. The option and expert advice on upgrading to an underground system that is viable to future proofing your property is available and the company will fully back and service the lines put in place.

Tony's sound knowledge of his trade allows for complete confidence in his advice and expertise. An outstanding company proudly supports him, and his dedicated crew thrive on providing top quality customer service. They are all highly experienced in their field and are passionate in helping you to ensure that you are not out of pocket again.

The 2006 polar blast was an expensive and unforeseen lesson, but Lemacon have the expertise on hand to help.

There is a fine line in business and Lemacon simply will not allow or tolerate for this to be crossed. When nature draws a raw deal and leaves us stranded and out of pocket, they are there to help. There is no added call-out fee for the extreme conditions, there's just reliable, friendly and efficient service to get you up and running as quickly as possible, because they care about you, your business and your family. Shopping around for the best price is always wise, and you will be pleased you did when contacting Lemacon.
